Ever wondered what exactly your children are reading? Are you ever confused at the dozens of titles your student raves about? (Just how many books are there in the Magic Tree House series? And how many adventures does the Lightning Thief have???) Well, this year we are starting something new in the library – a book club for grown-ups to read, enjoy and share the books their students are reading. We will explore the latest in children’s literature, classic children’s books, series and more.

Our plan will be flexible. Some months we may choose to read just one title. Another month we may choose among several books from a series or a particular genre or author. We will have two ways to share our thoughts on these. One will be a regular monthly meeting – on the 4th Monday of the month, 8:45-9:45 AM, here in the library. But what if you can’t make the meeting?? We will also have an on-line discussion board available 24/7 for your convenience beginning Sep. 28.

Our first meeting will be next Monday, Sep. 28 – 8:45 here in the library! We will discuss you ideas for books to read, how to conveniently get copies, and how to use the on-line discussion board. (I’ll be sending out directions for this via email, too, for those who sign up.)

To sign up for this great opportunity, just email me at mschroeder@lwsd.org and title the message “Ben Rush Reads”!

Keep Reading!
